Are you ready for the test?

My fire alarm is in “Test.” So what does that mean? For emergency response in the building, it has little meaning. If the fire alarm goes off, you should initiate an evacuation – even if you have been told the building is in “test.” If the alarms activate while the building is in “test” mode, it generally means the alarm has been activated by a part of the system that is not in test, and, therefore, is an active alarm. Remember: If the fire alarm goes off, evacuate!

Be prepared for Hurricane Season!

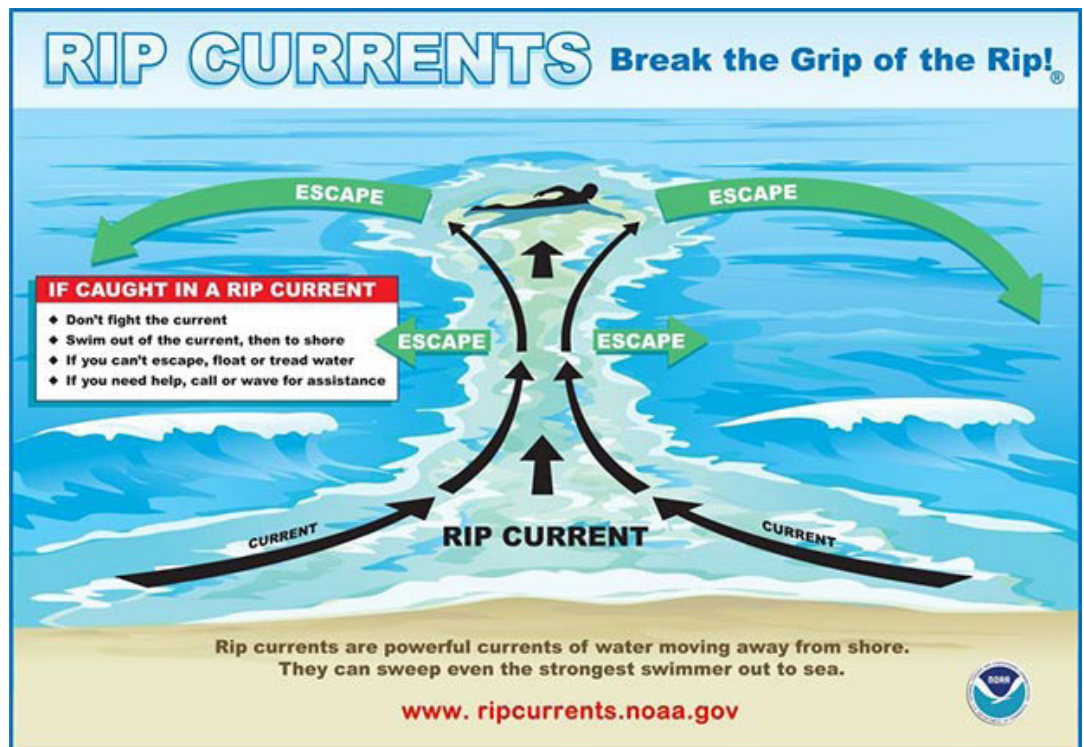

Hurricane Season in the Atlantic Basin and the Caribbean lasts from June 1st to November 30th with a significant peak in late August and early September. Hurricane season is expected to be quieter than normal due to the El Niño weather pattern we are currently experiencing. Projections for the 2015 Hurricane Season include 6-11 named storms, 3-6 hurricanes, and 0-2 major hurricanes (category 3 or greater).

Our greatest threat from hurricanes would be their residual effects – heavy rain, tornadoes, strong winds, and flooding.

Break the Grip on the Rip!

Summer often means trips to the beach! Know what to do if you get caught in a rip tide! Watch this video, it could save your life!

Meet the Interns!

The Department of Public Safety has four KSU interns for the summer. They will be primarily working out of the Office Annex with the Office of Emergency Management. Although interns will be given important responsibilities for their work and academic credit, the purpose of their internships is to gain valuable experience.

Stephen

Stephen Schulze is an Emergency Management Intern from Marietta, GA. He will work primarily with Derrick Walker. He has an Associate of Arts degree in Criminal Justice from Gainesville State College, and will graduate with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Criminal Justice from KSU at the end of this summer. Besides working with Life Safety Systems, he wants to gain experience in crime prevention, police patrol and emergency management.

Kourtney

Kourtney Thurman is an Emergency Management Intern and Criminal Justice Major who transferred from Columbus State University who will graduate in December 2015. She is from Austell, GA. She will conduct research for the active shooter response class, research recovery and continuity assets, assist with tabletop exercises, draft the public health response annex to the Emergency Operations Plan and design the emergency management training class for resident assistants. She will also tour Cobb County Emergency Management Agency and Georgia Emergency
